

Private sanctuary

Brindabella Bathrooms has created a European-inspired wellness centre

THE owners of this glorious space wanted a new ensuite to serve as an extension of their bedroom and were keen to move away from traditional designs. With this brief in mind and inspired by seminal Munich designer, Michael Sieger, Brindabella Bathrooms created a unique sanctuary for the pleasure and enjoyment of the couple only.

What was produced is a private zone (known as a wellness centre in cutting-edge European design), a place where the homeowner can retreat and relax in unrivalled style. Unlike conventional ensembles, this Brindabella Bathrooms wellness centre is not hidden away but welcomed into the bedroom's interior and celebrated as a luxurious feature of the space. It has been cleverly amalgamated into the décor by an open floorplan and incorporated dressing table that work to blend the two spaces into one.

As part of the bedroom, the bathroom has been made to appear as a natural extension of the furnishings and suitably → boasts a warm and inviting atmosphere. This has been fashioned with gold-laced feature tiling and a high-gloss polyurethane vanity treated to a coat of Dulux Hog Bristle. To ensure comfort, the Italian limestone tile floor is heated all the way to the edge of the bed and an internal odourless system has been incorporated into the exhaust structure.

Brindabella Bathrooms has blurred the line between the bedroom and bathroom to produce a space made for two.
